LIVE WIRES

By Neal R. O'Hara

The big league teams are off again. The big league race is on again. It looks like the A's are gone again. And it looks like Pat Moran again.

With the Braves and Red Sox out of the race, Boston can take an interest Harvard's apring football practice.

The Yankees may lack speed, but so does a steam roller.

Ball players jumping to the outlaws this spring can get 95 cents an hour as railroad brakemen.

ONE STRIKE AND EVERYBODY WALKS MEANS THE RAIL-ROAD RULES NOW NEED TO BE CHANGED.

Only advantage the Gianta enjoy this year is that McGraw did his spring training in Havana.

The freak delivery rule seems to be the Volstead Act of baseball.

When the pennant winners stump the spring experts, they go and pick

The 1920 baseball returns should find Philadelphia with the same standing it had when they took the last census.

Pat Moran refterates he'll repeat.

After the game Baker and Huggins held a conference and Baker once more informed the little manager peoted. that he wants to play but does not tike the idea of leaving his two

This is indeed a sad story of the opening game of the Yankees, which had its setting at Shire Park before some 14,000 Philadelphia flans. Sad because Connie Mack's team of in Common Pleas Court yesterday by youngsters defeated the Yankees by Lee Magee, former member of the Chicago team. score of 3 to 1. Sad because Babe Ruth-the great Ruth, the King

Mack with the victory on a silver platter.

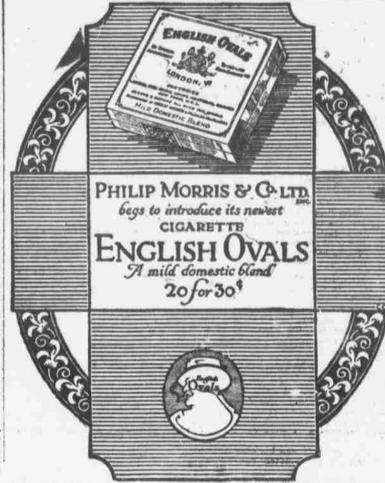

No doubt Col. Ruppert and Col. Huston, owners of the Yankees, had painted in their minds Ruth coming to the plate in the late innings and clouting the ball over the right field fence. No doubt the two Colonels had pictured that this would be the winning blow and that the Philadelphia fans would cheer long and loud as Babe trotted around the bases.

Medal Winner Narrowly Escapes

Defeat at Pinelaurst.

PINEHURST. N. C., April 16.—
Franklin H. Gates, who won the qualifying medal in the mid-April tournament, had a narrow escape from defeat at the hands of Donald Parson, of Youngstown, in the first match round. The two players both went around in 79, were never more than a hole or a stroke apart, and the match was all even at the eighteenth. Parsons missed an eight-foot putt at the inneteenth, and Gates took the match at the twentieth hole with a winning 4. Defeat at Pinchurst.
